The SPO should begin operations after the commission has transferred its files and endeavor India conclude trials promptly in order to prevent eroding of the public trust and the desire to cooperate. The CIIP demonstrated to the NHRC that the Punjab police had fabricated at least one identification when the next of kin of the decedent admitted to Ensaaf that his father, the alleged secret cremation victim, a former police officer, had died of natural causes at home. The National Security Act was amended to allow for detention without trial for up to two years in Punjab for acts prejudicial to the security or defense of India. Some officials privately justified the violations as necessary to combat terrorism. The extrajudicial execution of Mohinderpal Singh provides further evidence of police fabrication of records, in this case post mortem reports, as well as abuses against other family members. The Terrorist Affected Areas Special Courts Act of provided for special in-camera courts in "terrorist affected" areas that could conceal the identity of witnesses. He was instead identified as another Pargat Singh, a resident of M-village near the abduction, Rajiv Singh called Paramjit Kaur, Khalra's wife, and informed her of the abduction. The unlawful killings of Gurbachan Singh's two sons highlight the disparate remedies available because of arbitrary distinctions resulting from the NHRC's limited mandate and failure to investigate cases.
